Hispanics enrich nation, says Navy pilot, student

By JOY CHRISTMAS

NAVSTA Public Affairs Staff

As an officer in the U.S. Navy, Lt. Jaime Hernandez is proud to serve in defense of his country. He is as equally proud of his Hispanic heritage and is dedicated to preserving and sharing with others the proud legacy of achievement and contribution made by Hispanic Americans.

Hernandez, a student at the College of Naval Command and Staff at the Naval War College, was the guest speaker at Naval Station (NAVSTA) Newport's observance of Hispanic Heritage Month on Sept. 21.

Hosted by the NAVSTA Equal Employment Opportunity Committee (EEOC), The theme for this year's national observance, celebrated Sept. 15 to Oct. 16, is "Making a Difference in our Communities and Our Nation."

With an enthusiastic greeting in both English and Spanish, Lt. Hernandez said that Hispanic-Americans are a diverse population in itself, with various cultural and linguistic origins, race and color.

"They can be of European, Indian or African descent, or any combination of these three," said Hernandez of the population of 39.9 million and growing. "Hispanic Americans can have cultural ties, like I do, to Mexico, the Caribbean countries, Central America, South American or Spain itself."

Hernandez said the emergence of Hispanic Heritage week in 1968 broke a long-standing practice of stereotyping and ignorance that suppressed the documentation and recognition of the contributions by Hispanic Americans. The observance was later expanded to a month in 1988. The observance begins to coincide with the anniversary of the independence for five Latin American Countries – Costa Rica, El Salvador, Guatemala, Honduras, and Nicaragua.

"All Americans, certainly Hispanic Americans, and even more specifically, our Hispanic youth, are entitled to know about these contributions," said Hernandez, a Navy pilot, who graduated the Navy Academy Prep School in Newport, and U.S. Naval Academy in 1996 with a degree in political science.

Noting significant contributions by Hispanic Americans in every facet of society, including exploration, entertainment, sports, science, medicine, space, research and the arts, Hernandez, got a stir from the audience when he revealed the creator of Mickey Mouse, Jose Luis Girao, was Hispanic, later adopted when he was orphaned and his name changed to Walt Disney.

Hernandez said he takes extreme pride in being a part of the long honorable service of Hispanic Americans in the Navy.

"As the son of a Marine Pilot, I hold my family's naval service dearly and my culture's contribution to a naval service as sacred," said Hernandez.

Hernandez noted proudly such prominent naval leaders as the Navy's first admiral, David Glasgow Farragut (Civil War), former Secretary of the Navy Eduardo Hidalgo (1979-1981) and Rear Adm. Jose Luis Betancourt, currently Com-

Author Hornfischer guest at Leyte Gulf anniversary

The USS Massachusetts Memorial Committee will commemorate the 60th anniversary of the Battle of Leyte Gulf on Friday, Oct. 15, at the Officers' Club, with an evening with James Hornfischer, author of The Last Stand of the Tin Can Sailors.

The recent best-seller is the essence of first-hand accounts of the legendary battle fought Oct. 25, 1944, from veterans, survivors and unsung heroes who manned the U.S. destroyers, and destroyer escorts which met the threat of the Japanese fleet off the Philippine island of Samar. It was one of the most decisive naval battles of World War II.

Hornfischer has been selected by the Naval Order of the United States to receive the Samuel Eliot Morison Award for Naval Literature in November. The award is named for the late Rear Adm. Samuel Eliot Morison, a Harvard University history professor and considered America's most distinguished naval historian.

Past recipients, American authors whose writings have made a substantial contribution to the preservation of the history and traditions of the Navy, include Tom Clancy, Stephen Coonts, Edward L. Beach, David McCullough and former Secretary of the Navy John F. Lehman.

The evening, which will feature dialogue and a book signing of Hornfischer's book, will begin at 6 p.m., and will include cash bar and heavy hors d'oeuvres.

Ticket are $35 per person. Due to security clearance requirement, reservations must be received by today. For further information, call Paula Hague at (508) 678-1000, extension 101.

Naval War College celebrates 120 years

By LT. DAVID AUSIELLO
NWC Public Affairs Office

On Wednesday, Oct. 6, the Naval War College will celebrate its 120th anniversary.

To commemorate this historic milestone, the college faculty, staff, students and friends will gather in Spruance Auditorium for a multi-faceted presentation that will include a look back at the college's history; a "visit" by Commodore Stephen B. Luce, the college's first president; and a distinguished list of speakers including college president, Rear Adm. Jacob L.

Shuford.

Founded in 1884, the Naval War College is the oldest war college in the nation and the first military service institution in the world to be designated a war college. The foundation laid by Luce was built upon by Capt. Alfred Thayer Mahan, the second president of the college. Of all the people who were to influence the institution in its early years, none was to have a more profound impact than Mahan.

His views and analysis on naval warfare coincided with important issues in domestic and international affairs and provided a timely rationale for expanding the global role of the United States in the late 19th Century.

Building upon the foundations of Luce and Mahan, a systematic method of tactical analysis was introduced to educate officers with procedures for estimating military situations, determining action, drafting appropriate implementing orders, and evaluating results. This analysis would later become known as war gaming.

Introduced in 1887, war gaming has been a significant part of the Naval War College ever since. During the period between World War I and II, students spent a great deal of their time planning for and conducting war games.

Naval War College graduates include such distinguished admirals as Sims, Spruance, King, Nimitz and Halsey, as well as many others who hold prominent military positions today, such as Gen. Michael W. Hagee, Commandant of the U.S. Marine Corps.

The work begun 120 years ago by Luce and Mahan continues today as the Naval War College provides an unrivaled graduate education to the leaders of tomorrow while conducting research that serves as a focal point, stimulus, and major source of strategic operational thought to policy makers in Washington D.C.

Naval War College turns 120

RIGHT PHOTO: The USS Newport News (CA-148), the third heavy cruiser of the Des Moines (CA-134) Class and the last big gun cruisers built for the U.S. Navy, passes by the Naval War College in 1953.

PRESIDENT John F. Kennedy holds a news briefing at the Naval War College in September 1961 to announce that John A. McCone will become the new director of the Central Intelligence Agency. It was the first time a president had spoken at the college since July 22, 1908, when President Theodore Roosevelt appeared there. Presidents Franklin D. Roosevelt, Harry Truman and Dwight D. Eisenhower also visited the College.

LEFT PHOTO: Students and faculty members take part in a war gaming exercise in Pringle Hall in the early 1950s. At the end of World War II, Adm. Chester W. Nimitz noted that the war with Japan was re-enacted in the game rooms at the Naval War College by so many people, and in so many different ways, that nothing that happened during the war was a surprise – except the Kamikaze tactics toward the end of the war.

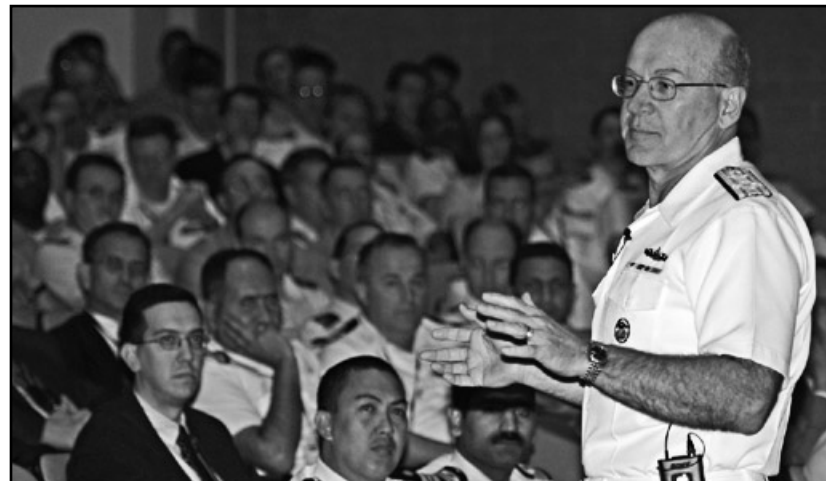

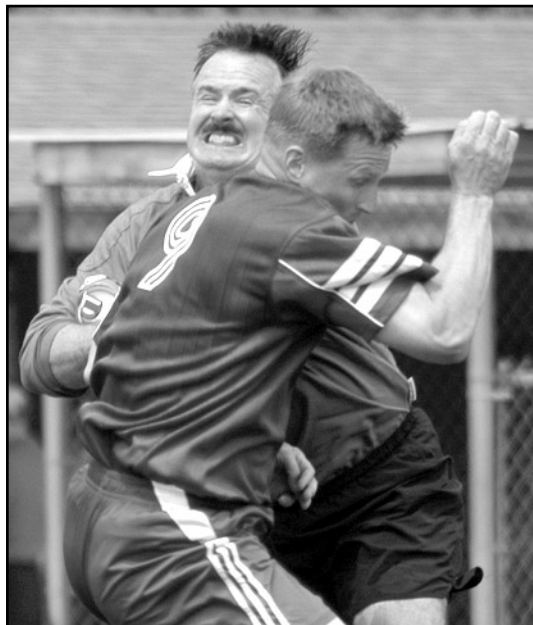

A NAVY SENTRY stands guard at Gate 1 in 1885 below Founder's Hall, the former Newport Asylum for the Poor, which in 1884 became the original site of the Naval War College. Reportedly on a late October day that year, Commodore Stephen B. Luce was rowed by launch from his flagship of the North Atlantic Squadron anchored off Newport to Coasters' Harbor Island to a site designated by the Secretary of the Navy for a new kind of college. Once on land, Luce proceeded to a large stone building, climbed its rickety stairs, and as he opened the front door, solemnly christened the structure the United States Naval War College.

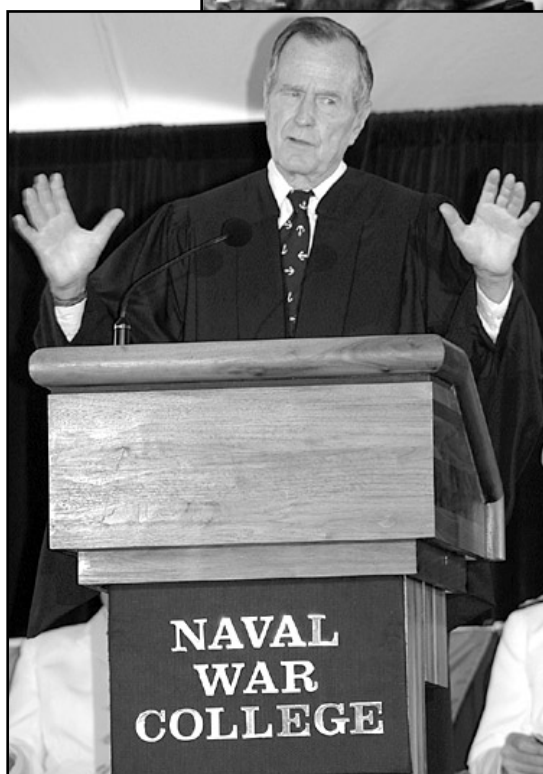

ADM. ARLEIGH BURKE, Chief of Naval Operations in the 1950s, conceived of forming an elite school for senior international naval officers who could spend a year together studying professional subjects. Since 1956, the Naval Command College and, later, the Naval Staff College have followed through on Burke's vision. More than 3,000 officers from foreign navies have graduated from the two schools and nearly half of them have been promoted to admiral. The first class, the Naval Command College Class of 1957, is pictured here.

Naval War College turns 120

RIGHT PHOTO: Each spring, students from the College of Naval Warfare represent the Naval War College at the Jim Thorpe Sports Days competition on the grounds of the Army War College in Carlisle, Pa. It matches teams from all five of the senior service colleges.

ADM. VERN CLARK, Chief of Naval Operations, frequently visits the Naval War College to speak with students, staff and faculty about the current state of readiness in the U.S. Navy and Sea Power 21.

FORMER PRESIDENT George H. W. Bush addresses the graduates of the Naval War College Class of 2001 during ceremonies on Dewey Field. Bush was awarded an honorary Master of Arts degree in National Security and Strategic Studies.

THE NAVAL WAR COLLEGE'S Spruance Auditorium has often been the site of many informative and inspiring lectures. Here, retired admiral and former Naval War College President Stansfield Turner addresses the students, faculty and staff.

CONSTRUCTION on Conolly, Spruance and Hewitt Halls, seen here, was completed in the mid-1970s.

Naval War College turns 120

DR. KENNETH WATMAN, left, from the Center for Naval Warfare Studies, designed and moderated a war game for New York City Police Commissioner Ray Kelly, right, and top officials from the NYPD. The post 9/11 war game was designed to explore methods and techniques which could assist first responders in combating a new age of homeland security challenges.

FREEDOM IS NOT FREE — The Naval War College dedicated the Patriots Memorial on Sept. 9, 2002, to honor the Naval War College students and alumni who were killed in the Sept. 11th terrorist attack on the Pentagon. The Washington D.C.-based students who were actively enrolled in the College of Distance Education were: Ms. Angela M. Houtz; Lt. Jonas M. Panik; and Cmdr. Dan F. Shanower. The alumni were: Capt. Gerald F. Deconto; Lt. Cmdr Robert R. Elseth; Capt. Lawrence D. Getzfred; Cmdr. Patrick J. Murphy; Capt. Jack D. Punches, Jr.; Cmdr. Robert A. Schlegel; and Lt. Col. Kip P. Taylor.

RIGHT PHOTO: War gaming and international conferences are regularly held in McCarty-Little Hall. The Joint Command Center is in the heart of the building and can replicate an at-sea war room for carrier strike group commanders.

THE NAVAL WAR COLLEGE curriculum is modeled on the Harvard Business School curriculum and includes three core trimesters of study: Strategy and Policy, National Security Decision Making, and Joint Military Operations. Here, Professor Bill Martel, right, addresses students in the National Security Decision Making course.

STUDENTS from all services attend the Naval War College. Approximately half of the U.S. students are officers from the Army, Air Force, Coast Guard and Marine Corps. Civilian students from defense-related agencies also attend the NWC. This joint atmosphere has also found a home on the football field, as students representing the Army and Navy square-off each year in a traditional flag football game before 'The Game.'

Annapolis hands Rams first loss

ANNAPOLIS, Md. — Naval Academy Prep School football team's undefeated streak was broken last weekend, as the Rams fell to the Naval Academy junior varsity squad, 26-17.

Opening the game, Navy used some razzle-dazzle to score quickly. In the second play of the game, the Middies scored on a 50-yard halfback toss pass. But the extra point field goal was blocked by NAPS safety Ketric Buffin to leave the score at 6-0.

The Rams answered quickly. The second play of the Rams drive, running back Karlos Whitaker scored on a 79-yard run. Kicker Johnathn Tigani converted the extra point.

On Navy Prep's next drive, Tigani kicked a 39 yard field goal to make the score, 10-6.

Ending the second quarter, Navy scored on a 1 yard run.

For the second game in a row, NAPS opened the second half with a kickoff return for six points. NAPS running back Shun White returned the kickoff for a 93-yard touchdown to set the score at 17-13.

The third quarter was a defensive battle. Neither offense scored a single point during the third quarter. Navy Prep's 37 yard field goal was no good.

In the fourth quarter Navy JV scored on a 12 yard run to set the score at 17-20.

Navy JV scored one final time to conclude the game.

Tomorrow, Navy Prep will travel to Bridgton Academy in North Bridgton, Maine, for a noon start.

5k By The Bay attracts entries

By GREG KOHLWEISS

Navalog sports editor

The Newport Chapter of the Surface Navy Association (SNA) has attracted dozens of entries for the fall 2004 running of the 5k By The Bay Run for Friday, Oct. 15, at 5 p.m. at Naval Station Newport.

The start and finish will take place on the north end of Coasters' Harbor Island, near the Surface Warfare Officer School's Arleigh Burke Hall.

SNA is a non-profit organization that promotes communication and coordination among the military, business, and academic communities sharing an interest in Naval Surface Warfare.

All proceeds from this annual-event benefit the Navy and Marine Corps Relief Society, which provide emergency financial assistance to active duty and retired Navy and Marine personnel and their families, and the Newport Chapter of the SNA.

The 5K course is designed to maximize the visual splendor provided by Narragansett Bay, the Newport Bridge, Naval War College, Naval Station Newport and Surface Warfare Officers School.

Trophies will be given for runner and team categories: 17 and under, 18 to 29, 30 to 39, 40 to 49, over 50, a Clydesdale (180-plus pounds) division for males and a Philly (150-plus pounds) for females.

There will also be a post-race awards party that will include food, beverages, door prizes, and entertainment.

The race fee is $15 and all participants are guaranteed a multi-colored t-shirt for those who register by Oct. 8. After Oct. 8, the fee is $18.

Registration is now available online at: www.sna5k.com or by calling Lt. Nick Kozma or Lt. John Mentzer at 841-4985.

Patterson paces Navy Shields

ON NARRAGANSETT BAY – Bernie Patterson (in boat 163) placed 13th for the Navy fleet during the Wednesday night Shields class racing series, Sept. 22.

Chris Withers and Phil Lotz (Boat 138) took their first win of the season, rounding the weather mark in first and holding on through the finish.

In light air and raging current, the fleet held their first race south of the Pell Bridge in months, and in a fluky north-westerly.

Andrew Burton (boat 201), Charlie Shoemaker and Coles Mallory (boat 245), and Harry Anderson and Charlie Schumway (boat 217) rounded close behind Withers and Lotz at the top mark, fighting to reel them in the entire down-wind leg.

The Race Committee shortened the course at the leeward mark, allowing Burton to slide into second place, and Shoemaker and Mallory to hold onto third.

The order of finish for the Navy boats are as follows: 13th, Boat 163, Bernie Patterson, Middletown 15th, Boat 15, Shawn Lobree, Newport 19th, Boat 164, Ron Oard, Middletown 23rd, Boat 29, Lt. Cmdr. Curtis Duncan, Middletown.

Incze cruises past Rommel in Rhodes

ON NARRAGANSETT BAY — Mike Incze and Herb Rommel vied for first place, but in the end it was Incze that took the Sept. 15 race off Coasters' Harbor Island during the Rhodes 19 Wednesday night series.

There was no racing Sept. 22. Besides the weekly competition between Incze and Rommel, the real variety in this weekly action occurred in the remainder of the pack, as the remaining 10 boats battled to win "the second race."

Sailing course N1 in a race marked by variable east south-east winds and a strong flood tide, Dan Sullivan showed his best finish of the season, beating all of the remaining nine boats to finish in third.

Many position changes occurred on the long windward leg from 13 to the finish at 12, particularly in the last quarter mile.

Captains Pat Wyll and Bob Sullivan, both new to the Rhodes racing series this season, finished in fourth and fifth, respectively.

Mike McDonald, dead last at the leeward mark, stayed close-hauled near the bridge and moved into sixth place.

TRICARE period for newborn enrollment to be reduced

Current TRICARE policy states, a newborn/adoptee is "deemed enrolled" in TRICARE Prime for the first 120 days from the date of birth and/or adoption.

Effective Jan. 1, 2005, the TRICARE "deemed enrolled" period will be reduced from 120 days to 60 days from the date of birth and/or official adoption date. This change will bring TRICARE policy into alignment with managed care industry standards and potentially improve continuity of care. Therefore, beginning Jan. 1, 2005, beneficiaries are strongly encouraged to complete enrollment application formally enrolling the child in TRICARE Prime within the 60-day time frame.
